1. A uranium mining are is located about 20 km. from Klodzko (Glatz) west of the main Klodzko-Swidnica (Schweidnitz) road.
2. The engineers and workers, who are mainly Germans from the DDR, live in isolation in a special camp. Very few Poles are employed. The management is in the hands of the Soviet military authorities.
3. The uranium ore, which looks like crushed red brick, is packed in tin boxes. In size, these boxes are similar to those used for cinema films. Weight is not known. The boxes, which are not completely filled, are closed with a lid which is soldered on. They are then put into wooden cases. They are mainly transported at night in a three-ton truck to the airfield at Swidnica.
